Game Previews: By Jake Dennstedt

Geneva TW at Rochester AIA, 5:00pm
Webster- This marks the first match ups of the season between the two clubs when the Twins travel to Webster this afternoon. The Twins have a little momentum coming in after sweeping a doubleheader from the Nitros yesterday and will look to add to its current two game winning streak. The Rochester AIA club picked up it’s first win on the season last evening and will be looking to make up some ground in the standings.

Justin Ratte (Flagler College) will be the starter for the Twins as he makes his second start this summer while Spencer Ansett (Whitworth College) will get his first start of the season for AIA. Ansett’s last start came at the NCAA Division III College World Series.

Utica at Syracuse SC, 5:00pm
Syracuse- Each club comes in to today’s game hoping to end some early season losing streaks. This will be the third meeting between the clubs this season with each of the previous meeting seeing the visiting team win. The Salt Cats haven’t tasted victory since their season opening win in Utica and have currently dropped four straight since. The Brewers are coming in having dropped its last two.

Miguel Navarro (Mt. San Jacinto JC) is the starter for the Brewers and looks to get his second win of the season. Navarro a highly touted pitcher was dominant at times in his last start. Sean Williams (Oklahoma Panhandle St. University) will get the ball for the Salt Cats and will be looking to pick up his second victory against the Brewers this summer.

Geneva TW at Rochester AIA, 5:00pm

Geneva is familiar with coming to Webster but this is has an interesting twist. This will be the Twins first appearance to Basket Road Field while the Rochester AIA will be playing just it’s second home game in its new ballpark. The Twins are coming in riding high after dismantling the Nitros in a doubleheader swept yesterday. Rochester AIA comes in having defeated the Niagara Power last evening.

NYCBL Player of the Day
For Saturday, June 9, 2012

Joe Pantano - Olean Oilers
Erie Community College

Pantano is the second consecutive Oilers to be named hitter of the day. Pantano went 4-for-5 in the Oilers 8-5 victory over then first place Hornell. He scored a pair of runs and stole a base. He reached base in five of his six plate appearances on the night.

NYCBL Pitcher of the Day
For Saturday, June 9, 2012

Jon Menke - Geneva Twins
University of Rochester

Menke pitched six innings in the first start of the summer in the Twins 14-0 victory over the Nitros. The Highland Park, IL native struck out ten while walking just three batters. He allowed just one hit and didn’t allow a run in the game.

Adirondack at Sherrill, 5:00pm

Sherrill- At this point each of these clubs should be very familiar with each other. This will be the third meeting between the clubs. The visiting Trailblazers have won each of the first two meetings scoring ten and fifteen runs respectively. The Trailblazers coming off a rained shorten 15-6 win last night against the Silversmiths will be looking to continue its offensive onslaught against them.

Sherrill hopes that the home cooking will change its fortunes as they are currently on a two game losing streak. One player to watch is Colton Campbell (Rogers St. University) for the visiting Trailbalzers. He comes in with two homeruns and fours Runs batted in this season.

Charles Parsons (Mohawk Valley CC) will get the start for the Trailblazers while Oliver Pratt (Young Harris College) will be the starter Sherrill. Pratt has been one of the few bright spots for the Silversmiths pitching staff early on.

Taylor Lewis- Amsterdam 10’.

Lewis was a 10th round draft pick by the Pittsburgh Pirates in the 2011 MLB June Amateur Draft. The New London, CT native previously played his 2011 season for the State College Spikes of the New York Penn League. Lewis finished the season with a .188 batting average. He played in sixty games scoring twenty-two runs, driving in seventeen runs and stealing sixteen bases on the season.
