Adirondack at Syracuse JR DH, 5:00/8:00 pm
Syracuse- The Trail Blazers travel to the Jr. Chiefs for the second time in five days as the two teams play a double header at Alliance Bank Stadium starting at 5pm. Syracuse leads the series 2-1 and scored a season high 29 runs in their meeting against Adirondack last Thursday evening. The Jr. Chiefs will look to rebound from their 11-10 loss last night to cross-town rival Salt Cats as the Trail Blazers are hoping to close the gap between them and first place Syracuse. Watch out for Adirondack Infielder Cody Campbell; he has hit three of his seven home runs this season against Jr. Chief pitching. For Syracuse, Shortstop Alex Sanchez, who already leads the league in hitting at .488, will try to raise his average to above .500 entering the All-Star break.

Geneva RW at Sherrill, 5:00 pm
Sherrill- In their last game before the All-Star break, these two teams are fighting for 4th place in the Eastern Division of the NYCBL. The Red Wings lead the season series 3-2, but the home team has won every contest so far this season. Noyes Park could provide a huge advantage to the Silversmiths with that short porch in right field. Of course, Geneva’s infielder Phil Rosenblum might try and put one over the short fence and add to his home run total. Rosenblum has belted six homers with a .314 average and 16 RBIs. Geneva will try to get back on the winning track entering the All-Star break on Tuesday. After starting 5-2, the Red Wings have lost 13 of their last 18 games. Sherrill, on the other hand, will look to improve on their 6-6 mark at home this season.

NYCBL Game of the Day
Monday July 9, 2012

Geneva RW at Sherrill, 5:00 pm

When the Red Wings travel to Sherrill this afternoon they will be playing to hold on to their fourth spot in the eastern division playoff race. The Smitties are coming off a big win on Sunday afternoon against the red hot Brewers that snapped the seven game winning streak and are looking to get closer to that last playoff spot.

NYCBL Player of the Day
For Sunday, July 8, 2012

Wesley Van Boom- Sherrill Silversmiths
Brown U

Van Boom went 3-for-5 on the day in the Silvermsiths 13-3 win over the Brewers. He scored three runs while driving in three runs and also adding a pair of homeruns.

NYCBL Pitcher of the Day
For Sunday, July 8, 2012

Johnathan Knapp- Niagara Power
Olivet Nazarene

Knapp went six and 2/3 innings in the Power 14-2 victory over Olean. He allowed just three hits while giving up two runs. He struck out one and walked two.

Geneva TW at Olean, 5:00

Olean- Things are a bit tighter in the Western division as the break approaches with Olean and Geneva in second and third. With a win, the Twins would return to the .500 mark at 15-15, but the Oilers would like to gain a half game on the idle first place Dodgers. Despite the current standings, Geneva has led this series 3-2 so far this season. Look out for Oilers outfielder Jon Kemmer who should enter the All-Star break as the Western Division Triple Crown leader with a .444 average, seven home runs and 39 RBIs. Geneva, in addition to moving to .500 with a win, will also move a half game closer to the Dodgers and will be only five back at the break if they win.

Niagara at Rochester AIA DH, 5:00/7:00 pm

Webster- Last place Rochester would like to take something positive into the break and facing the 4th place Power in a double header on Monday might be just what the doctor ordered. Two of Rochester’s eight wins this season have come against Niagara in their four meetings this summer. But as Niagara sits at 13-14, a sweep for the Power, and they move back above .500 and into third place in the Western Division. Fans should keep a close eye on Power First baseman Chane Lynch who is currently on an eleven-game hitting streak. During that stretch, Lynch has seven multi-hit games.
