Week in Review

Of Note:

All-Star Rosters Announced:
The NYCBL All-Star rosters were announced on Tuesday. Players from every team will be participating in the June 9th festivities in Geneva. Read more about the game here. The roster can be found here.

Oilers' Mystifying Success:
> Sports is full of numbers, analysis, analysis of analysis, and more analysis. In the end, only one stat truly matters: wins. The late Oakland Raiders owner Al Davis coined the phrase “Just Win Baby!” and the Olean Oilers have done just that. Still, it's truly puzzling as to how they've managed to not only sit in first in the NYCBL, but garner attention on the national stage while having the 8th ranked lineup (.240 AVG) in the NYCBL. The answer may be found in the Oilers' knack for winning close games. Seven of their 14 victories have been by margins of one run, three of which saw both teams scoring in double digits. Their largest margin of victory this year has been six runs.

Nitros on Record Pace:
Wellsville is currently averaging just under two home runs a game, putting themselves on pace for 73 home runs (they're scheduled to play 40 games). This would shatter the highest total any team has tallied in the past seven years: the 2012 Adirondack Trail Blazers clubbed 45 homers, the most any team has recorded in that stretch. Below is a list of the past seven year's worth of the teams with the most home runs:

Nothing If Not Consistent:
In one of the stranger occurrences of the season, the Olean Oilers beat the Niagara Power twice on the same day, by the same score. Another oddity: three games ended in the score of 2-1, and four were decided by a margin of one run. Odder still; game two of the Olean-Niagara double header went 13 innings, as did the Nitros' victory over the Dodgers at Maple City Park. Two other New York teams—the New York Mets, and the Hudson Valley Renegades (single-A short season) had 13-inning games Monday night. It's almost a shame that this Friday is not the 13th.

Player of the Day:

Aaron Pigna, 2B, Syracuse Junior Chiefs
AVM University
3-3 (1 double), 2 R, 2 RBI, 2 HBP, .339 AVG, .468 OBP

Pigna had a great night at the plate against the Red Wings Tuesday night, reaching base in all five of his plate appearances, twice after being hit by a pitch. His on base percentage rose a whole three percent with the performance (.431 to .468), leaving him with the eight best OBP in the NYCBL.

Sabermetric:
Pigna owns a SECA (secondary average) of .387, which is good for third best on the JR Chiefs. New York Mets third baseman David Wright currently owns a SECA of .386.

Pitcher of the Day:

Billy Kosachook, Syracuse Junior Chiefs
Urbana University
W (2-1), 8.0 IP, 1 R, 3 H, 1 BB, 4 K, 3.52 ERA, 1.26 WHIP

Kosachook earned his second victory Tuesday night in an 8-1 win over the Geneva Red Wings. The righty hurler was sensational over eight innings, holding Geneva to just one run on three hits and a walk. His stellar night lowered his ERA from 4.80 to 3.52 and marks his longest outing of the year.

Sabermetric:
Kosachook allows a .261 average to balls the opposition hits into play. This would mark would be 17th-best in the majors, tied with Phillies’ starter Cliff Lee.
