ONEONTA PUNCHES TICKET TO THIRD STRAIGHT NYCBL CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES
NIAGARA FORCES GAME 3 AGAINST OLEAN

Player of the Day
Zach Krider – Oneonta Outlaws
2-5 | 1 R | 4 RBI |
After driving in two previously in the game, Krider broke (USC-Upstate) a 6-6 tie with a two-run home run in the top of the ninth. The runs held up and served to be the winning margin to send the Outlaws to their third consecutive NYCBL Championship Series appearance.

Pitcher of the Day
Joey Orlando – Oneonta Outlaws
1.2 IP | 1 H | 0 ER | 2 BB | 1 SO | W
Orlando (Binghamton) entered the game in the bottom of the eighth. With runners on the corners, the right-hander escaped a first-and-third situation and preserved a 6-6 tie by picking off the runner at third when Syracuse made several attempts to use a rundown play to score. After receiving help from his offense in the top of the frame, Orlando struck out the final batter of the game.

This Date in NYCBL History:
July 31, 2006—The Saratoga Phillies were out-hit 14-6, but were able to pull off the win on a wild pitch in the bottom of the 12th inning, defeating Little Falls 3-2.

Daily Recap:

Game 2: Western Division Championship
Olean Oilers 12 Niagara Power 6
OLEAN, N.Y. – Niagara’s Jordan Hayes (Olivet Nazarene) drove home two with an RBI single to cap a four-run fourth inning. Caleb Thomas (Colorado School of Mines) added two more insurance runs with a two-run single in the seventh. Mason Irby (Jones County CC) went 3-for-4 with three runs scored and two walks. Jessep Polk (North Greenville) contributed two hits in three at bats while driving in two and scoring three times. Olean’s Jon Lapolla (Suffolk) went 2-for-5 with two runs and as many RBI.

Game 2: Eastern Division Championship
Oneonta Outlaws 8 Syracuse Jr. Chiefs 6
SYRACUSE, N.Y. – With the game locked at six in the top of the ninth, Zach Krider (USC-Upstate) hit a go-ahead, two-run home run for the Outlaws. Earlier in the game, Krider sent home two in separate at bats and finished the game with four RBI. Jordan Bradley (Wofford) went 2-for-4 with three runs scored, an RBI and a double. On the hill, Joey Orlando (Binghamton) earned the win as the seventh pitcher of the evening for Oneonta. In the eighth, Orlando picked off the would be go-ahead run at third to end the inning and sent his team to the ninth tied at six. Shane Trevino (IPFW) paced Syracuse’s attack on offense going 3-for-5 with two RBI and a run scored.

Today’s Schedule July 29, 2015

Game 3 of the Western Division Championship Series:
Niagara Power at Olean Oilers 7:00 P.M.
Niagara Powered by Adversity
The Power have seen it all this summer; a 22-7 start, national acclaim, followed by a 4-13 finish. At face value, it looks like Niagara was “lucky” to make the playoffs. In some respects that’s not entirely untrue, but further examination reveals a bit of a different story.
Make no mistake, the Power were as good as their record indicated in the first 29 games of the season. They outscored opponents by a more than convincing 151-100 (5.21 runs scored a game to 3.45 allowed), a ratio of over 2:1. They had one losing streak and it lasted for just two games. They had seven separate winning streaks. Their average margin of victory was 3.57 with the average defeat coming at a deficit of three runs. In short, the outcome was consistently decisive, but consistently in Niagara’s favor.
Right before the All-Star Break things began to turn sour. The aforementioned skid was more than just a threat to the Power’s playoff chances; it was maddeningly frustrating. Thanks in no small part to a 17-0 release of said frustrations against the Genesee Rapids, the Power actually managed to outscore their collective opponents by 10 runs in a stretch that saw them win just four of their final 17 games. The real thorn in Niagara’s craw was how they were losing games; close.
Of the 13 losses the Power sustained in the last three weeks of the season, nine were by a lone run, five by two, and one by four. In the first 29 games, despite consistently winning by large margins, Niagara boasted an impressive 5-1 record in games decided by one run and a sterling 9-3 in games decided by 2 or less. In the final 17, the script flipped—the Power went 0-8 in games decided by one and a combined 1-13 in those of the two or less category.
Perhaps all the aggravation has served as motivation as the Power have left little doubt of their potency following their impressive 2-1 dismissal of the NYCBL’s defending champion Hornell Dodgers.
Ranked number one in scoring offense in the regular season, the Dodgers were able to put up seven runs against Niagara and yet still found themselves outscored twice by a Power offense that averaged seven runs a game for the three game-series.
Having already been in win-or-go-home mode for the better part of the past two weeks, Niagara makes a strong case for the playoffs most dangerous as well as most volatile team. If the squad can regain its pitching prowess that had them place in the top five in multiple pitching categories during the regular season, there are few remaining pitching staffs capable of besting them.

NYCBL PRIME STATS: WESTERN DIVISION CHAMPIONSHIP

Oilers look to Short-Circuit Power with Lethal Staff
The “Pitching wins Championships” adage continues to ring throughout contemporary baseball just as loudly “Defense wins Championships” does through the rest of the sporting world. If you subscribe to that belief than chances are you like postseason prospects of the Olean Oilers. Scratch that; you love them.
By now even the causal NYCBL fan is familiar with Austin Bizzle’s exploits—he’s a regular feature in the NYCBL Game Day releases. With that in mind, there’s more to the Oilers staff than the regular season innings pitched leader, and the current postseason strikeouts king.
Following Bizzle (Alabama State), are Aaron Phillips, Ryan Pordes (El Camino College), Brandon Schlimm (St. Bonaventure), and Adam Rigney (Nichols College). Here’s a few constants the five shared during the regular season worth your attention; all five have thrown at least one complete game, all five have an ERA of 3.00 or better, and all had a BAA against of .257 or lower.
There’s a reason, the Oilers were the quickest team to advance to round two of the postseason. They took the team with the second-highest batting average in the regular season and held them to a paltry .239, a mere 16 for 67. Olean pitchers took the top hitters for average in the summer of 2015 in Marty Napleton (St. Joseph’s College) and JT Pittman (Le Moyne) and held them two a combined two runs and one RBI in two games. They held the league’s fourth-best scoring team, who averaged 4.46 per game in the regular season, to just three runs in two contests. Geneva ranked second in the league with a slugging percentage of .360 prior to the playoffs, but had just three extra-base hits in 67 at bats in the postseason.
Olean earned a sweep despite its offense trailing the team in ended up outscoring in batting average (.183), on base percentage (.265 to Geneva’s .320), and slugging percentage (.233 to the Twins’ .284). That’s what you might call power pitching. With that in mind, the offense has to wake up. The Niagara Power are surging and currently averaging seven runs per game in the playoffs. They’re prone to streakiness, but have the ability to erupt at any given moment, having scored 17 runs in two separate games this season. Batters not named Hollins, Edwards or Lapolla are hitting a combined 6-for-46 (.130). Relying on excellent pitching can get you far in baseball, but you have to at least score one run.
NYCBL Prime Stats: Outlaws Offense on the Loose

Surprising to no one, but awe-inspiring to all, the Oneonta Outlaws continue to do what they do best; hit lots of baseballs. When your top five at-bat leaders slash totals mirror those of perennial MLB all-star Adrian Gonzalez, you sleep well at night if you have the fortune of being on their team-opposing pitchers probably a little less so. The quintet of Jordan Bradley (Wofford), Zack Blonder (Maryville), Tyler Bruno (Iona), CJ Krowiak (Binghampton) and Trevor Putzig (Tennessee Tech) posted a combined line of .298/.368/.378 in the regular season. With Krowiak out of the fold for the postseason, mid-July addition Ryan Nelson (Quinnipiac) has stepped impressively. Playing 15 games in the regular season, the righty posted a ludicrous .367/.404/.551, collecting 10 RBI and 7 runs scored to close out the season. He’s kept that momentum going in the postseason, currently hitting .500 with three runs scored and four RBI in three playoff games.

As for the usual suspects, Blonder continues to rake with a .500 playoff batting average, two RBI and two runs scored. Bradley is right in line with a .467 average, three RBI and five runs scored, and just behind him sits Putzig, hitting .417/.462/.583 with a run and two RBI. Bruno has struggled a bit but given the small sample size of 11 at bats, it’s not yet time to discard his contributions, especially when he’s managed to cross the plate three times in as many games.

All totaled, seven of the Outlaws starters are hitting above .250 entering the second round of the playoffs, and all but one player with more than one appearance in the lineup have an on base percentage north of .333. It should come as no surprise that after a round one sweep of the Geneva Twins in the Divisional Series, Olean has won 10 of their last 12, including a two-game sweep of the Niagara Power in the Divisional Series.

Niagara scored 20 total runs in their two wins in the Divisional Series.

Players to Watch:

Niagara- Caleb Lang (Cairn) is the MVP of the Power offense this season, leading them in hits (55), doubles (16), triples (7), homers (2) and RBI (34). Brandon Mumaw was the workhorse of the Niagara staff this season, throwing four complete games in his eight starts. His ERA was tops amongst starters (1.58) while compiling a 6-1 record and a strikeout-to-walk ratio of nearly 6:1.

Olean- David “Bubba” Hollins’ (St. Petersburg) .340 batting average finished second best in the NYCBL. Hollins also ranks among the top run producers with 32 RBI, which is two short of the NYCBL leader. The Orchard Park, New York, native went deep twice this season and hit as many triples as top-three doubles. Hollins hit safely in seven of his last eight games in the regular season and has reached base safely in every game since the Fourth of July (21 games).

Did you know? Niagara’s Conner Combs (left) and Olean’s Bubba Hollins (right) are sons of former Major League Baseball teammates. Pat Combs and David Hollins played together on the Philadelphia Phillies in the early 1990’s. The younger Combs and Hollins will meet in the Western Division Championship.
