x-clinched playoffs

The Daily Recap:

Cortland 15, Sherrill 6
CORTLAND, NY--The Crush lived up to their name Wednesday afternoon as the lineup erupted from top to bottom to put up a 15 spot on the day. Slots one, two, and three combined for three hits, five walks, 10 runs scored and four RBI. Shortstop Geoffrey Seto (Niagara) went 2-4 with two walks, scoring three times and driving in a pair. Wesley Burghardt (SUNY Brockport) ripped four singles and drove in three, both season-highs.

Oneonta 10, Cortland 7
ONEONTA, NY--Cortland split its two-foe doubleheader as their ninth-inning rally fell two runs short in Wednesday night's loss to Oneonta. Jimmy Hand (Northeastern University) was the most impressive of the quartet of Outlaws to score four runs, going 2-4 with a single and a triple, scoring twice and driving in three runs.

Wellsville 11, Rochester 3
WELLSVILLE, NY--Benjamin Haefner (University of Buffalo) and Josh Beams (Indiana University Southeast) each chipped in two runs and two RBI as the Nitros once, eight of nine reached base at least twice, and eight of nine scored at least once.

Hornell 13, Genesees 1
GENESEE, NY--Since 2006, no NYCBL pitcher can claim what Jordan Accetta (Wofford) can. The Hornell ace recorded his eighth win in as many starts Wednesday evening, tossing six scoreless innings allowing just two hits and fanning seven. Of course Accetta had help, backed by a Dodgers lineup that lit up the scoreboard to a tune of 13 runs. Every single Hornell starter reached base at least once, eight of nine reached base at least twice, and eight of nine scored at least once.

Twins 4, Salt Cats 3
SYRACUSE, NY--On a day filled with lopsided scoring, Geneva and Syracuse restored a little sanity in a contest that saw drama late. Fernando Garcia's (Murray State) RBI single in the top of the eighth brought the Twins within striking distance and Syracuse walks issued and errors gave Geneva the tying and go-ahead runs in the ninth. After quickly digging a two-out hole, the Salt Cats put the tying and winning runs on base with a pair of walks before Kevin Berge (St. John Fisher) induced the game-ending groundout.

Red Wings 8, JR Chiefs 7
GENEVA, NY--When Gabe Levanti (Northeastern) drove in the go-ahead run with his single in the top of the 11th, one may have thought that the game's third lead change would be its last. This was not so. The Red Wings took advantage of wild pitches and errors in the bottom half of the 11th to tie the game and put runners on first and second for pinch-hitter Clint Roche (Marietta). Roche delivered. On a 1-1 count, the walkoff celebrations began following Roche's single to score Mark Huddle (John Carroll) for the win.

Today in NYCBL History:
July 17, 2012—Olean’s Jon Kemmer (Clarion) had a career night, going 3-5 with two home runs and six RBI as the Oilers doubled up the Twins 16-8.

NYCBL Game of the Day:

Oneonta at Red Wings, 7 pm

What happens when two of the hottest teams in the league meet with the division lead on the line? Lucky NYCBL fans will find out tonight as the second-place Outlaws travel to the first place Red Wings with just a half game separating the duo in the Eastern division race.

Both teams are 8-2 in their last 10 games, but the Outlaws hold the edge having won five in a row. The Red Wings are .500 over their last four.

Matt Kozemchak (Lehigh) and Clint Roche (Marietta) are currently the team’s best hitters hitting at clips of .357 and .325 respectively.

On the other side, Ramon Osuna Sanchez (Charleston) leads his squad with an average of .310 and an OBP of .403.

The game figures to be a fantastic pitchers’ duel as the Red Wings are ranked 2nd in team ERA with a mark of 2.78 to Oneonta’s third place 3.08.

Currently, the season series is tied 2-2 between the two squads.

Burghardt (SUNY Brockport) went a combined 6-9 Wednesday between two games against two different teams. He showed little slowing down following a dominant, four-hit performance in the afternoon, tacking on two more hits including a double. All told, the righty infielder raised his average and OBP dramatically going from .234 to .272 and .298 to .333 respectively.

Pitcher of the Day: Jordan Accetta, Hornell Dodgers

W (8-0), 6.0 IP, 0 R, 0 BB, 2 H, 7 K, 1.82 ERA, 1.03 WHIP

215 OAVG, .273 OOBP

With his eighth win, Accetta remains perfect in his eight trots to the mound as a starter. The righty has yet to give up more than three runs in a game, hasn’t allowed an earned run in the month of July (three starts and an All-Star game appearance) and hasn’t walked a batter in two straight starts and three of his last four. Runs support has certainly been a factor; more than half (five) of his wins came when the Dodgers scored 10 runs or more. On the season Hornell averages 10.88 runs scored when Accetta is on the mound while the pitcher himself has an ERA of 1.82, good for a differential of a staggering 9.06. Still, it hasn’t been easy for opposing lineups even without run support as Accetta’s two longest outings of 8.0 IP and 8.1 came in two and one run games, respectively.

NYCBL Alumni Update:

Jordan Schwartz, P, HOR ’11|NIA ’12

Vermont Lake Monsters, (Oakland A’s)

Class-A Short Season NY-Penn League

A fourth round pick made by the A’s in June, Schwartz has come into the Oakland farm and has been used in three games (one start) in his brief time with the AZL and the New York-Penn League. His first outing back in Arizona was easily his best even though he only went two innings. In that stretch he allowed three hits on no walks and he struck out four, surrendering just one run. That’s a strikeouts-per-nine of 18.

While still adjusting to life with the Lake Monsters both on and off the field, Schwartz has yet to record a decision and as not yet factored in to a decision for better or for worse.
